

Shared Room Floorplan Guide

Map out a perfectly balanced space for a brother and sister.

Design a unified territory that gives both kids their own distinct zones. Use these pro tricks to establish a functional, equitable layout.

● Key Room Elements

~60 inches

Beadboard height on 8-foot walls

2 identical

Brass sconces for independent reading light

2 drawers

Minimum dresser storage allocated per child

1 massive

Chunky jute rug anchoring both zones

Frictionless Curtains

Apply a dry silicone spray directly to the internal track glides during installation to guarantee silent, frictionless pulling every single night.

● Pro Zoning Tricks

- 1 Continuous headboard Bridge mattresses with one light oak headboard, mounted flush to beadboard using heavy-duty French cleats.
- 2 Flush ceiling track Mount architectural-grade aluminum tracks directly into drywall with wheeled roller glides and an acrylic baton.
- 3 3/4 height beadboard Ground the layout with warm greige wainscoting in a wipeable satin enamel to shield against scuffs.
- 4 Custom initial art Center framed monogram prints above each bed, using identical framing scales to keep the design cohesive.
- 5 Inverse color piping Swap dominant and accent tones on solid duvet throw pillows to link the boy and girl palettes.

● Optimal Walkway Clearances

Find your row: Your room zone

Your room zone	Your pick	Why
Pathway from door	36 to 42 inches	Ensures unhindered room access
Space facing closet	30 to 36 inches	Allows doors to open fully
Aisle between beds	24 to 36 inches	Eases dressing and bed-making
Area at the window	18 to 24 inches	Provides safe blind operation

● Before You Install

- Tape out the physical footprint before ordering any furniture.
- Locate wall studs for securing the heavy-duty French cleats.
- Confirm ceiling drywall is flat for a flush track mount.
- Check HVAC vent locations so the divider maintains consistent airflow.
- Consult drapery hardware packaging for the correct track weight ratings.

● Room Measurements & Notes

Enjoy creating a peaceful, beautifully balanced shared space for your kids!